Report to the Dean & Faculty Assembly: Certificate, Health Information Technology - Coding

Matthew D. Mingus
Faculty Assembly Curriculum Committee Chair

The University of New Mexico – Gallup's Certificate program in Health Information Technology - Coding was recently reviewed at the 16 November 2018 meeting of the Faculty Assembly Curriculum Committee. In a unanimous decision, and after carefully examining the revised material submitted by the Division of Education, Health, and Human Services, the Committee decided to accept the Certificate in Health Information Technology - Coding program review in its entirety. The only suggestion offered by the Committee was to adhere to the recommendations made in the advisement summary.

This program review was well-written, included all required materials, and made good use of the available data. The Curriculum Committee is confident that this program will continue to benefit and serve students well into our institution's future.

Matthew D. Mingus
Assistant Professor of History
Faculty Assembly Curriculum Committee Chair