

Teaching Excellence Symposium

Literacies Across the Curriculum

March 6, 2026

Call for Proposals

The Teaching Excellence Committee at The University of New Mexico-Gallup is calling for proposals for a Teaching Symposium to be held at the UNM-Gallup branch campus on March 6, 2026.

Submissions are invited for individual papers, roundtables, teaching demonstrations, and creative formats.

About

Literacies across the curriculum is ~the educational approach that integrates the teaching and application of reading, writing, speaking, language, communication, design, and/or creative skills into all subject areas with the intent to create critical thinkers and lifelong learners.

It recognizes that different disciplines have unique ways of communicating knowledge and challenges all teachers to be instructors of literacy within their content areas.

By providing students with literacy skills that transcend disciplinary boundaries, educators can better prepare them for success in academia and beyond.

We invite proposals from educators in all fields of study who integrate reading, writing, speaking, language, communication, design, and/or creative skills into their curriculum.
